Gen. Grant and Party Viewing the Giants of Yosemite Valley.

Ovations to the General in the Mountain Towns.

Merced Receives the Ex-President in Splendid Style.

MERCED, October 6.-The ovation to General Grant which began in San Francisco has sent its echoes to the highest peak of the Sierras. Yosemite has given its greeting in person. Mariposa, Bear Valley, Red Gulch, and every little mining or agricultural hamlet of these mountains has emblazoned welcome in flowers and evergreens and shaken the great Captain by the hand. Having run this gaunt-let of love and welcome, the General is now returning to San Francisco fatigued but gratified. He left Yosemite with his party on Sunday morning. He read the San Francisco papers on the porch of Bernard's before leaving and was specially interested in the news of the massacre by the Utes in Colorado. He had known Thornburgh and spoke of him kindly. To some expressions of solicitude from Mrs. Grant respecting the safety of a Surgeon in the army who was a friend of theirs, he replied, jocularly, that the gentleman being a thousand miles north of the seat of war, he might possibly be killed, but not by those Indians. To a gentleman who spoke

THE POLITICAL SITUATION In New York, he said he thought Cornell was pretty sure of being elected. The prospects in Ohio were not so certain, neither candidate for Governor of that State being atrong with the people. The stage left Bernard's Hotel, in Yosemite Valley, at 7 a. m., George Monroe holding the ribbons, and the General and Mrs. Grant on on every stage coach since he left the railroad, and led on every trail—he has made it a matter of pride the railroad. to be at the head of the column. The inside of the stage was packed closely, the young ladies and Ulyases, Jr., preferring the front seats. As the stage sped down the valley, it stopped to bid good-by to friends at Black's Hotel. The morning was as quiet as the early dispatches gave an account of the Sabbath in so remote a place could well be. The east wall of the valley was still in shadow, which extended to the foot of El Captain and Eagle Peck. The hight of Inspiration Point can be had, especially in the morning, the General and Mrs. Grant turned and took a farewell of the scene, repeating the terms of admiration used on former occasions. Then the visions faded, as the horses swept on into the pine forests on the road to Clark's Station. This commands many fine views. There are noble outlooks along the valley of the South Fork, and pleasant glimpses of wood interiors that would delight tourists were not the more magnificent scenery of Yosemite so near. All of these received their share of attention. There were only two stoppages on the way—one for a ten-minute picnic, and the other caused by the breaking of a bolt, which was soon repaired. This alight accident was the only one on the trip, there having before this been only little annoyances from yellow-jackets on the trails. The occurrence entailed a change of General and Mrs. Grant to a buggy, developing in the General some of the old horse instinct, he taking the reins and driving nestly into the station over the few miles of mountain road that remained. The flags were floating on the hotel, and its front still bore all the blazonry of welcome. After lunch, the party drove up the new road to tarting about 2 o'clock. There they through the usual tine. The General was impressed by the massive proportions of the Grizzly Giant. The coach stopped under Wan-wah-nah, and Miss Sharon took a peep up through the big telescope. At the little cabin called Galen's Hospice all the party alighted, and both ladies and gentlemen walked about on the prostrate form of Andy Johnson, This tree fell only a week before Johnson's death. The Giants, General Grant, Ohio, Illinois and Ike Cook were all very closely inspected. While looking at the first the guide told the General a story of Judge Jackson, of Georgia, who with a friend was visiting the grove, and who were about taking their lunch in the dow of the tree which bears the name of the great Union General. He called their attention to the fact and they at once moved over and finished their repast near a more congenial spirit—Andrew Johnson. The General heard the story, smiled one of his alow, wise smiles, and said nothing. He, in unison with the rest of the company, expressed their

WONDER AND ADMIRATION at the size of the trees. After an hour pleasantly spent they turned their faces towards the valley, reaching the hotel about dusk. It was the last night spent by the distinguished visitor in the mountains. The party gathered about a bright, crackling old-fashioned wood fire in the sittingroom, talked for an hour or two in a free and unreserved manner, and then retired to gather strength for the last day's staging. All were at the breakfast table the next morning before the General and Mrs. Grant ade their appearance. It was a little past 7 when all were ready and lamps and city buildings. The gas on the road. It is road is a hard one. The route was chosen, at the earnest desire of the villages along the line, which wished to do honor to the General. The pretty little mountain village of Mariposa had made great preparations. An arch of evergreens had been erected across the main street, and flags were flying from the principal buildings. The stage stopped under the arch to be photographed, while the Mariposa band, the same patrictic musicians who entertained the Grant party while in the valley, with their party while in the valley, with their pleasant music, played "Hail to the Chief." There was a handsome lunch, ter.

and hand-shaking with men, women and children at the Gallison House. At Hornitos the school just outside the village closed as the party came in, and the stage drove to the hotel, surrounded by a bevy of the boys and girls running at full speed. Here there were more bunting and decorations and another lunch at the hotel, of which all partook. The time made from Hornitos, which the stage left at 4 p. m., to Merced, twenty-four miles, was about the quickest ever made. This village had made admirable pre-

This vinage had made admirable pro-parations for the reception.

The stage reached the Six-mile House at 6 o'clock. It was very dark and rain was falling. Just after passing it was met by the Merced band in a wagon handsomely ornamented with Chinese lanterns. Passing on from that point the western sky seemed ablaze with > BONFIRES, ROCKETS AND ROMAN CANDLES. At the edge of the town the stage was met by the Merced Fire Company in uniform, and escorted to the El Capitan Hotel through long files of citizens, who lined the street on either side. The population of the town is 1500, but it is estimated that over 2000 people were in the streets, many hundreds having come in from the adjoining country. The greatest enthusiasm was manifested. The air was filled with exploding fire-works, and the applause was deafening.

"HOW ARE YOU, OLD BOY?" GEN. M'DOWELL'S CORRECTION.

A reporter called upon Major Gen-eral Irwin McDowell, of San Francisco, at the Grand Pacific Hotel yesterday, and asked him whether his visit here had any political or official significance. The General appeared very tired, and, in a languid sort of way,

"No, sir. I am here as a private citizen. I want to see my sisters, and my cousins, and my aunts in Chicago, whom I've not seen in a long time. I have also some brothers, and uncles, and nephews here that I am anxious to see dispatches gave an account of the greeting between Gen. Grant and myself that was entirely erroneous. The telegram stated the general approached me, as I stepped on board the Tokio, with hands outstretched, and saying, "How are you, Mac?" to which I replied, "How are you, old boy?" Now, my friends know that I would not treat him in such a discourteous manner. I could not allow myself any such familiarity. As far as the eception is concerned. I know no more than you. The Third Rail Between Denver and Golden to be Laid.

One of Jay Gould's Trades.

Some months ago Jay Gould, through a confidential friend, made an offer of twenty-five cents on the dollar for the Colorado Central railroad stock held by Jefferson and Gilpin counties. Without waiting for a veto of the people the Commis ners of Jefferson at once accepte the offer, received the $25,000 in cash and parted with $100,000 in railroad stock. In Gilpin county the Commis sioners declined to act without popular consent. Hence at Tuesday's elec tion the people voted to sell or not to sell, the sellers being encouraged by an official promise from Superinten dent Egbert to lay a third rail between Golden and Denver in case they prevailed.

The vote on this subject was limit ed to tax-payers, and the sellers car ried the day by eighty-nine. The amount of stock involved has a face value of $100,000, which makes the consideration equal to $25,000, and a third rail before November 7. Superintendent Egbert is preparing

This improvement, which was strong y favored last week by The Golder ranscript, will obviate the nocessity of transporting ores from the moutain counties for the Argo works, and also encourage trade between Denver and the established mining camps by put-ting aftend to the damage and delay incident to the change from broad to narrow gauge cars. The improvement will involve an outlay, on the part of the railroad company, estimated at

To the Editor of The Denver Tribune:

I, as the eldest daughter of the mertyred Agent Meeker, of White River Agency, wish to thank you for all the kind words that have been said it The Tribune of my good father, and also to express my feelings in a limited way about this horrible massacre. Had there been half as much expedition and force put in operation from the time of my father's calling for troops until the battle as there has been since the battle, this horoible massacre would never have occured. The government with its slow movements has let my father be murdered, when it could have been prevented. My father wrote Governor Pitkin on September 10, that his and all the lives at the agency were in peril, and requested troops. After three weeks' delay so small a detachment were sent as were overcome, giv ing the Indians more power than previous. Had the "cow-boys" of Colorado been called on September 10th, they would have gotten there in time to save the lives at the agency, and of the red devils that it would have been hard to find one alive to-day. The life of one common white man is worth more than the lives of all the Indians from the beginning of their creation until now. And yet such a man as my father, with brains, in-tellect anp power to move the thoughts of men—his life is now ignominiously put out by the hand of a savage foe, whose life or soul is not worthy of a dog. And no power in all the land to stay the deed. What a magnanimous government we have to pamper a set of creatures whose existence should have been a thing of the past long ago Oh, my father, could I but have died in your stead! My protector, my hope, and joy! Oh, the broken hearts of widows, daughters and sisthe other employes not named were hearts of widows, daughters and sis-also found.
